SCHOOL CENSUS IS NOW IN PROGRESS

Each Child of School Age in El Paso Is Worth to the City School Department.

El Paso children between the ages of seven and 17 are worth $8.85 a head. The annual school census started at six o'clock this morning and will continue for four weeks, until all of the children of school age are entered on the census records.

The census is being made to get the number of children in El Paso between the ages of seven and 17. It is not necessary for children to be in school in order to have their names listed, as the more names that are entered, the greater appropriation will be received from the state for the support of the public schools. The census will be carefully compiled, as it will cost the school fund $6.85 for each child that is left off of the rolls, and will add an equal amount to the appropriation for each one entered. The census is being made under the supervision of E. E. Sawyer, auditor of the city schools, and the men who will take the census are: George H. Hays, H. A. Donnelly, J. C. Luckett and Frank McNally.

Men Welcome Mother's Friend

A Duty that Every Man Ows to Those who Perpetuate the Race.

It is just as important that men should know of progressive methods in advance of motherhood. The suffering incident to child-bearing can be easily avoided by having at hand a bottle of Mother's Friend.

This is a penetrating, external application that relieves all tension upon the muscles and enables them to expand without painful strain upon the ligaments. Thus there is avoided nervous spells, the tendency to nausea or morning sickness is counteracted, and a bright, happy disposition is preserved that reflects wonderfully upon the character and temperament of the little one born to come. You can obtain a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store at $1.00. It preserves the mother's health, enables her to make a complete recovery, and thus with renewed strength she will eagerly devote herself to the care and attention which mean so much to the welfare of the child. Write to the Bradford Regulator Co., 222 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their valuable and instructive book of guidance for expectant mothers.

ALFALFA RAISERS

Before buying a hay press it will pay you to investigate the new Eagle Power Baler. In this press we present some new and interesting features, which eliminates a great many objectionable features that have caused the hay baling fraternity no little trouble.

Special Features

Will not break blocks or strip gear. Double feed table only 38 in. high. Can be fed from ground and from both sides. Fly wheel one-third larger than that used on any other power press. You will readily see the advantage of using a large and heavy fly wheel on a machine of this kind.

NOTICE—If, for any reason, such as division board not going clear of folder when head block comes against division board, the fly wheel releases and will positively not break the division board. This, in itself, will save untold expense and trouble every year the baler is operated, on division boards alone, and is a guarantee you will never strip the gears.

You can, by removing six bolts from engine extension, disconnecting same from main frame of press, by blocking up main frame—you can remove rear axle and bolt same on rear of engine frame, and you have the engine on separate mounted truck. This is a feature you will find in no other Hay Press.

We carry in stock both the Eagle Horse and Eagle Power Press.

EXCURSION TO SUNDAY WEST YSLETA FREE

Special Trains Between the Union Station and the Valley Sunday.

All El Paso is invited to attend the basket picnic which is to be held at West Ysleta Sunday. Special trains will leave the union station at 8:30 in the morning and 2:30 in the afternoon. The morning train will return at noon and the afternoon train will return at 6 o'clock. This will permit all who go on the trip to stay for the entire day in the country, or to return at noon if necessary. There will be absolutely no charge for tickets on this train. All that is necessary to make the trip is to apply at the Tobin Real Estate company, No. 1 Tobin Arcade, for free tickets for yourselves and your family, or get down the Tobin guides at the union station Sunday morning. Special invitations are given the men who work in the foundries, the factories and the mills to take their families for an outing in the country Sunday. Pack up the family lunch basket, take the children and come to enjoy a treat of a day in the cool country under the trees and away from the city and its noises and heat for one day.

West Ysleta, the gem of the El Paso valley, is worth going 11 miles in the country to see. It is a park and a suburb and a city. It is a free, lined and graded and the new interurban line and the country road run through the heart of West Ysleta. The trip down the Tobin guides at the union station Sunday morning. The green fields and orchards are more beautiful this year than ever, and the present is the best time to see the lower valley at its best. There are no obligations attached to the free tickets which Frank R. Tobin is offering the people of El Paso for the excursions Sunday. It is the formal opening of West Ysleta to the people of El Paso to enjoy his hospitality and see the El Paso of the future. West Ysleta is the place where El Paso ought to be and where it will be when El Paso gets the Elephant Butte dam and its 100,000 population. The mountains prevent the growth of the city to the north, the Rio Grande to the south and west. It must go east, and West Ysleta is the first step in the growth of the city eastward.

Call at the Tobin Real Estate company's office, obtain tickets for a free round trip to the country for yourself and your family and be at the union station Sunday morning before 9:30 o'clock or Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and get out of town for a day—Adm.

Married Life the Third Year

Warren Takes the Situation in Hand When Alice's Suitor Persists in Seeing Her.

By Mabel Herbert Uner

THIS envelope bore a special delivery stamp, and the address, "Miss Alice Willard," was in a large masculine hand.

There was no doubt in Helen's mind as to whom the letter was from, and Alice's mother had written her to intercept any letters that came from this man. But Helen felt she could not quite do that. Her innate respect for the founder of a letter she could not disregard.

After a moment's hesitation she took it to her room, and she noticed that it was postmarked from Philadelphia. So Aunt Emma's fears were well founded. It was from here to see Alice. How could they prevent it?

"Oh, a letter for me?" Alice, who was sitting at her desk, picked up the letter, started up, and in her eagerness almost snatched the letter.

"They had planned to see the Morgan collection at the Metropolitan museum that afternoon, but to Helen's surprise, when she opened the letter, Alice seemed very disinclined to go.

"Can't we put it off till tomorrow?" Helen asked. "I don't feel like looking at pictures."

This sudden desire to remain at home was not accounted for. At 3 o'clock the telephone rang, and Central said that Philadelphia was calling Alice Willard.

"Is it a long distance? Is it for me?" demanded Alice, who had plainly been waiting for the call.

Helen interfered. Helen handed her the receiver and left the room, but she could not hear Alice's shrill, eager voice. It was easy to gather that this man was on his way to New York and was coming to see her—that evening.

Quivering with indignation, Helen confronted Alice when she came from the phone.

"Alice, you know what your mother has written. You know she's instructed me not to let you see this man. Now I don't want to cause you or him embarrassment, but we'll have to forbid him to see you."

"Then I shall see him outside," defiantly.

"I should think, Alice, that you'd have some respect for our wishes. We've entertained you here for two weeks. I've done everything I could to make it pleasant for you—and now you deliberately defy me."

"Because you're asking something you're not to ask I tell you I won't be engaged to Mr. Hampton and that I intended to see him in spite of you or mother or anyone else. He's coming on from Philadelphia and is to call for me at half past six. We're going out to dinner."

"Alice, I don't understand you. I didn't think any girl, reared as you have been, could be so head strong."

"I happen to be of the age," flashed back Alice defiantly, "and you can't keep me from dining with the man I'm engaged to. Here," taking the special delivery letter from the front of her waist, "you can read this if you want to and see for yourself how much he cares, and how he's come on here from the west just to see me."

Helen's intense desire to know what kind of a letter this man would write overcame her reluctance to read it. It was two pages, written in a big, flowing hand.

Wednesday, 7 a. m.

My Dear Little Girl: Have just read in Philadelphia on my way to New York. This is not a business trip—I have come all the way from Cincinnati just to see you. So don't think that I'm not serious.

Now, dearest, it's up to you to fix it with those folks of yours so I can see you. I'm not going to have all this long trip and have you hedged in by a lot of straight-laced relatives. You're old enough to know your own mind.

I'll call you up from here at 2 o'clock and let you know what train I'm coming on and just when I hope to see you. But I'll be there in time to take you out to dinner tonight. Your devoted Ed.

Helen handed the letter back without a word. She knew it would be useless to try to point out to Alice that no man of any principle would have written like that to a young girl. That his very effort to get her away from the protection of her relatives showed his type. And so, this evening he would be determined to see her.

As soon as Alice was out of the room Helen phoned to Warren.

"It's about Alice. Can you hear me? I can't talk louder—she's in the next room. That man is in Philadelphia, and he's coming here to talk her out to dinner at half past 6. I can't do anything with her; she's determined to go. How soon can you see her?"

Warren promised to be there before 6, and he kept his word.

"What's all this about that man coming here?" he demanded, as Helen met him in the hall.

"He's dear. Her door is open. Come in here."

Warren listened grimly while Helen told him the whole story, and of Alice's determination to see the man when he came.

"Well, just leave it to me," Warren takes a hand.

"Are you going to say anything to her?" he asked. "Or will you just refuse to let him come up?"

"Told you to leave it to me, didn't I?"

It was plain that Alice was expecting to go out, for she had put on her prettiest gown. Helen looked it up for her without comment.

At 6:30, just as Maggie was putting the dinner on the table, the phone rang. Warren strode over to answer it. Helen heard his curt—

"The gentleman to come up."

Alice fluttered out, flushed and excited.

"Oh, isn't it someone for me, cousin Warren?"

"I believe it is," answered Warren grimly.

"I'll receive him in the library," eagerly, "or the front room?"

"I'll receive him," there was an ominous note in Warren's voice.

"What's your cousin Warren—surely you're not going to make things unpleasant for me, wouldn't you say that?"

A peremptory ring of the door bell cut short Alice's appeal, and Maggie rushed in, a servant of the house, with a package.

The large diamond stand, which Alice had bought at the Gray's, was typical of the man.

There was something in Warren's manner that had made both Helen and Alice feel that the next morning when Mr. Hampton entered he saw only Warren.

"I called to see Miss Willard," he announced assertively.

"Yes, I know you did," replied Warren. "But I don't know what you're doing here. I'm sorry to say you can't see Miss Willard while she's here."

"Can't see her? What do you mean, sir?"

"I think my meaning is quite clear. Miss Willard's mother has written that she has forbidden you to call on her daughter."

"Why, this is an outrage, sir! I'm engaged to Miss Willard. She's a young girl, and she's got a right to keep me from seeing her. I've come from Cincinnati for no other purpose."

"I'm sorry to hear that," said Warren. "This is the way out."

"I'm sorry to hear that," said Warren. "This is the way out."

WHAT PLANT JUICE DID FOR MRS. CRONE

San Antonio Lady Who Has Warm Praise For Greatest Tonic of the Age.

Mrs. M. J. Crone, residing at 235 Indiana Street, San Antonio, is now a firm friend and advocate of Plant Juice. She has found by experience that it is a wonderful tonic and specific for various ailments so common to city people. For seventeen years she has been a sufferer with kidney trouble and for several years with indigestion. In all of that time she had tried almost every remedy that came to her without getting relief.

"One bottle of Plant Juice has done more good than all the medicine I have ever taken," she said. "I feel so much better in every way, and all of the old troubles which have made me more or less an invalid for years have passed away. I feel a sense of gratitude to this splendid remedy, or rather to those who have put it on the market, and it is for this reason that I recommend it to others. I am sure that it will help them if they have any stomach or kidney trouble. My case was a very and one and it has done wonders for me."

For the restoration of nerve force, for the relief and cure of all stomach, kidney, liver and blood ailments Plant Juice is the greatest tonic of the age. ASHURTS HAS CLOSE CALL FROM FORGER

Man Works a Slick Game and Almost Lands the Arizona Senator for $400 on a Bad Check.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Senator Henry Ashurst, of Arizona, has had a narrow escape from being victimized by a group of forgers operating with headquarters in New York. Following the arrest here this week of a man known under several aliases, for attempting to pass a forged check on representative Howard, of Georgia, it became known that last August a man representing himself to be "H. G. Royston, from the Mormon settlement in Arizona," came near defrauding Senator Ashurst out of $250 by means of a forged check alleged to be signed by John Birdso, then chairman of the democratic central committee of Arizona.

Senator Ashurst had received a letter postmarked Los Angeles, purporting to be from John Birdso, chairman of the Arizona central committee, in which he was asked to send him $400 on a check.

"H. G. Royston will call on you in a few days with a letter of introduction from me. Please show him every courtesy possible."

A letter a note was pushed under the door, stating that "Royston" was in town and would call on senator Ashurst in a few days.

The alleged "Royston" called on schedule time and presented a letter addressed to himself, alleged to be from Birdso, reading:

"Enclose cashier's check for $350, drawn on the Central bank of Los Angeles. I know your delicacy about asking people to cash checks for you, but am sure senator Ashurst will fix you up."

Considering it a pleasure to do a favor for the matter, the senator cashed the check, and the clerk had left the capital, decided to take matters in his own hands and telephoned the bank to postpone action.

He telegraphed to the bank in Los Angeles, inquiring if it was good. The reply came back that it was worthless.

When "Royston" disappeared and had not been heard of again until he was arrested in representative Howard's office for trying to work a similar fraud on Howard. "Royston" discussed Arizona politics with senator Ashurst and showed a wide acquaintance with the state.

CATTLE MOVEMENT FROM MEXICO TO BE TIED UP. Anacarte Bros. imported 16 head of Mexican cattle from Juarez Wednesday. They are for local slaughter and sale.

The movement of cattle from Chihuahua will be tied up for several weeks, it is believed by cattlemen, because of the disturbed conditions in Chihuahua and the possible cutting of the Mexican Central line.

Fred Stevenson, vice president and general manager of the Palomas Land and Cattle company, called to El Paso from Chihuahua Wednesday evening, but immediately went to Columbus, having heard that horses and cattle of the company were to be stolen by rebels. He went to protect the property of the company as far as possible.

ATLANTA JURY PROBES DEATH OF GIRL FOUND DEAD IN FACTORY. Atlanta, Ga., May 1.—Investigation of the death of 14-year-old Mary Phagan was resumed at the inquest today.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil company factory where the girl's body was found Sunday morning, was expected to testify by the testimony of Geo. Epps, a man repeatedly examined by detectives. A new turn has been given to the case by the testimony of Geo. Epps, a 40-year-old, who told the jury that Mary had said she was getting afraid of Frank because of his attentions.

Work on New Courthouse and Jail Delayed; Ice Forms and Fruit Suffers.

Carrizozo, N. M., May 1.—Allen Johnson, who has been old of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Johnson, was thrown from a vehicle, which he was driving and was seriously injured. The accident occurred near the town of White Oaks and the young man was alone at the time of the accident. He sustained a broken leg, and two fingers were badly crushed that amputation will probably be necessary. He was brought here to the El Paso hospital.

Work on the courthouse and jail buildings is not progressing very rapidly at present owing to a delay in material and lack of help and contractor Ben Bachtel is of the opinion that the buildings will not be completed before August.

It is found that the recent frosts in this section have done great damage to the fruit crop of the country. Ice half an inch thick has formed the last few evenings.

Miss Ada Edmiston, who has been quite sick for the past two weeks, is able to be out again.

Rev. J. R. Pitaval, D. D. of Santa Fe, will visit Carrizozo on May 5 and confirm a class at the local Catholic church. He will be assisted in the ceremony by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Girmach, chaplain of Fort Stanton, and Rev. Father Magoon, of Tulare, a large class will receive the sacrament of confirmation.

James S. Brownson, of Topeka, Kas., passed through Carrizozo enroute to El Paso and other Texas points. He is making the trip overland by auto and is accompanied by his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Perry J. Shepherd, of Chicago. Dr. Shepherd will probably visit El Paso for the benefit of his wife's health.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gates, who recently came here from Tucuman, have gone to El Paso where they will spend the summer.

Dr. John W. Clark, of Roswell, is here for a visit for a few weeks with relatives and friends.
